The with blood from the wounds of the head. The meeting between the parents in the presence of the dead body was an affecting one. The husband and father had been called home from work, but not until he reached the house did he realize the seriousness of the accident. Perley, the three-year-old child, who was with her sister at the time of the accident, was much improved this morning. She was not dangerously hurt. Her head was bruised and she was badly frightened, but beyond that she was not injured. She is being attended by Dr. Newman.

The funeral of the dead child will take place tomorrow morning. A GEORGETOWN MAN MARRIED.

The driver of the wagon, Joseph McDonnell, was present at the hearing and he was represented by Lawyer Chas. Maurice Smith.

The combination beer and soft stuff wagon, which did the damage, was in front of the station, and was examined by the jurymen. There was a bolt missing from a part of the break, but it was claimed that that did not interfere with the workings of the brake. The statement of the values of entries received at the Georgetown custom house during the week ending June 18 is as follows: Antique ties, $1,800; china ware, $1,113; silk embroid-eries, $548; carpets, $87; gin, $62; scientific instruments, $115; cigars, $317; engravings, $96; manufactured metal, $529; manufacturers' wood, $255; smokers' articles, $14; total, $4,736.

HYATTSVILLE, Mp., June 22, 1892.

The wagon stopped about 100 yards from where the accident happened. Witness could not tell how fast the horse was going, for he did not see the horse until after it had stopped. There were other children on the pavement.

Dr. H. M. Newman testified that he was called to the house, but he found that the child was dead. The child's clothing was saturated with blood and the skull was crushed. Witness could not tell whether the horse's foot or the wheel had inflicted the injury to the skull.

W. Poultney as best man. Amid the brilliant glare of numerous Japanese lanterns the invited guests formed an imposing circle around the bridal party as the ceremony was performed by Rev. C. M. Livingston, pastor of the Hyattsville Presbyterian Church. A reception was held upon the lawn, where refreshments were served. The bridal couple were the recipients of many handsome presents and left amid a shower of rice and slippers for Atlantic City and an extended northern tour. On their return they will occupy the groom's new house

The heart-broken mother was next called, and she told, as best she could, the story of the accident: "I got the two little babies ready to practice a little piece," she said, "and sent them over to the church with the other children. I owns of Laurel, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Talbert, Mrs. and Mrs. Chas. Talber w. ReiIonroe

So strong that I suppose they did not see the wagon coming along."

Witness could not say what struck her child first, but the wheel went over her head and witness saw her roll over after the accident. The carpenter picked her up and brought her toward the house.

In answer to a question by a juror she said that her children had separated from the others, but they did not stop, as the colored witness stated. The wagon, she said, came down at full tilt and struck the child before she (witness) could call to them. Mrs.

O'Brien said that both the children had weak eyes and she thought the strong sunlight affected them.

HEARD THE DRIVER CALL.

Philip L. Rodier, carpenter, who was working near the scene of the occurrence yesterday, testified that he heard a man on the wagon all to the children, who were going diagonally across the street. When witness looked up the children were five or six feet from the wagon, the smaller child, Perley, being in front. She ran into the shaft near the step and was thrown beneath the wagon. The older sister appeared to be going after the younger one. She struck against the same part of the wagon before the horse stopped.

"Was the wagon going fast?" asked a juror.

"I couldn't tell how fast the barva was going."

just after the accident. The colored man was seated in the middle of the seat. He had the thought that the horse had become frightened.
The animal was stopped for an instant about six yards from where the accident occurred, but then started off again and was stopped near K street. The driver picked the child up and handed it to Mr. Lannon. Witness picked up the other child.

Mark J. Foley testified that when his attention was attracted to the wagon he saw a group of children crossing the street. He saw the driver jump from the wagon and pass the reins to the colored man. Witness thought the screams of the women frightened the horse after the child had been killed. The colored man had his foot on the brake when witness saw him. He could not tell whether the driver had his foot on the brake or not. The horse was trotting down the hill at the time of the accident, and witness did not think it was going very fast. The driver came to his store and said "My God, the child is dead. What had I better do?"

Witness advised him to turn in his wagon and give himself up, which he did.

The colored witness, Johnson, was recalled and he said he was using the brake down the hill before the accident.

Soon after leaving the President he heard the new boys on the street calling out "extra" and he bought a paper containing the announcement of the nomination of Mr. Cleveland on the first ballot. The paper was at once taken to the President and gave him the first information he had on the subject Associated Press to induce the President to say what he thought of the nomination, but he courteously declined to say anything at all on the subject for publication.

TO HONOR THE FENCIBLES.

All the District Militia Will Turn Out t When the National Fencibles arrive here or Saturday evening they will find such an escort waiting for them as they never had before. Gen. Ordway is absent from the city, so Col. Clay of the second regiment is in command. This morning the colonel received a telegram from the general authorizing a brigade parade—band, drum corps and all. Every member of the D. C. N. G. is proud of the sweeping victory achieved by the Fencibles and a heavy turn out is expected. The parade will consist of seven battalions of infantry, one troop of cavalry (dismounted), the light battery (dismounted), the engineer corps, the cycle corps and the ambulance corps. OLD STUDENTS' MEETING.

The Old Students' Society of St. John's Academy held its annual meeting last night on the lawn of the academy barracks, the lawn being cool and pleasant. Dr. George T. Klipstein was called to the chair in the absence of President Taylor, and Mr. R. M. Latham was secretary. A committee was appointed to nominate officers, and reported a ticket with George T. OPPOSITION TO THE PLATFORM. There is opposition to the platform, although nost members of the democratic persuasion are coy about expressing their views. Mr. Holman, however, is outspoken.

Speaking of the nomination he said: "It is a good nomination; as good as could be made."

The platform, however, he denounced. "It is," he said, "marked by more timidity than anything the democratic party has done for years. It is as weak as a combination of timidity and dush could make it."
